*Reducing social isolation
among older adults*

What is Social Isolation?

When an older adult has limited or no contact with others but would prefer more, they are socially isolated.

Social isolation can lead to loneliness and can impact physical and mental health.

Older adults are more likely than others to feel socially isolated because they have experienced life transitions such as:

- The loss of a spouse or partner
- A chronic or limiting medical condition
- Retirement
- Becoming a caregiver for a spouse or partner

Become more socially engaged by getting involved in your community!

Benefits for Socially EngAGED Older Adults

Staying connected contributes to a better quality of life for older adults because it leads to:

1. Improved emotional well-being and mental health
2. Better health and physical fitness
3. Renewed sense of purpose
4. Longer life spans

Communities Benefit When Older Adults are Socially EngAGED

Older adults who are socially engAGED in the community are able to share their knowledge, talent, skills, experience and wisdom when they:

- Perform caregiving activities and mentor others
- Make contributions to the local economy
- Become entrepreneurs and start small businesses
- Serve as experienced and resourceful employees
- Support community organizations through volunteerism

Older Adults Can EngAGE in the Community by:

- Using technology to connect to friends and family
- Rekindling creative talents or learning new ones
- Learning something new through classes designed for older adults
- Participating in intergenerational programs in the community
- Serving others through volunteering with local organizations
- Seeking part-time work opportunities, or starting their own business
